Noy hangs out (dirty) laundry of GMA anomalies

IT WAS a revelation that apparently swed more than it shocked.

As he promised, President Aquino yesterday bared a laundry list of anomalies that allegedly skimmed billions of pesos from government coffers in the Arroyo administration.

In his first State of the Nation Address, Mr. Aquino detailed cases of fund misuse, from the misappropriation of calamity funds for former President Macapagal-Arroyo's district in Pampanga and the grant of perks to government executives to the large-scale importation of rice.

"This report is merely a glimpse of our situation," the President said. "It is not the entire picture of DECLARING "we can dream again," President Aquino yesterday outlined a program to forge public-private partnerships to raise revenues for a nation strapped for cash because of inefficiency and corruption under the Arroyo administration.

In his first State of the Nation Address (Sona) delivered in a straight-to-the-point manner, Mr. Aquino denounced the "revolting" manner that the public coffers were squandered under the Arroyo administration and said that "change

WORTH A GLIMPSE
President Aquino delivered his first State of the Nation Address on the opening of the 15th Philippine Congress at the Batasang Pambansa in Quezon City on Monday. The first part of his presentation was a peek at his predecessor's misdeeds of public funds, which he said "is a glimpse of the 'we can dream' era of the nation." (PHILIPPINE STAR, July 27, 2010)

The former President found

President Aquino's first State of the Nation Address (Sona) a good debut but lacking in certain points.

Former President Fidel V. Ramos said Mr. Aquino was on the right track and that the aim of the past administration should be investigated.

"Sometimes should be dug up and brought out. Whoever is responsible should be accountable. And if according to the courts they should be prosecuted and punished, so be it," Ramos said after Aquino's speech.

The people deserve that kind of justice, he said.

Ramos added that Mr. Aquino should also present a "road map for the future" to show where he wants to take the country.

Former President Joseph

Estrada said Mr. Aquino's list of misdeeds—the misappropriation of revenues, expensive but useless infrastructure projects, excessive importation of rice leading to waste—were the lesser of the anomalies linked to SELECTED BY compromising the justice, Senate President Juan Ponce Enrile and Speaker Feliciano Belmonte Jr. yesterday vowed to support the Aquino administration in ending the country's huge problems while keeping the independence of their respective chambers.

Citing what he called the Filipino's new found faith in their government, Belmonte in particular urged his colleagues in the House of Representatives to call for their quick least attention solely to uplift their districts and make sure their own "should prosper in neglect"—a reference to officials who have taken over the pork for personal gain.

Begging the speakership was a cakewalk for Belmonte, a 15th-year (15) congressman from Quezon City who got 225 votes compared to 20 for his lone rival, Atty. Rep. Edilberto thousands of people.

Victims and their relatives have since years after leaving the prison activities had been whitewashed down to just 12 years after taking into account more already served and other factors. That effectively leaves the 67-year-old Duch could now die with ease.

"I can't accept this," said the 66-year-old French Duch, who was shaking so hard she could hardly talk. "My family died. My older sister, my older brother. I'm the only one left."

The war crimes tribunal... 30 years and $100 million in the making... has sought to find justice for victims of the Khmer Rouge regime that killed an estimated 1.7 million people from starvation, medical neglect, slave-like working conditions and execution from 1975-79.

The court's top leader, the 66, died in 1998 and his other sister Khmer Rouge leaders are awaiting trial. Some legal experts said the tribunal may have acted more leniently with Duch because it was serving the worst punishment for members of the regime's inner circle.

Duch (pronounced DOO) headed Taol Sleng, a secret detention center also known as S-21 for the word "torture" in Khmer.

During the 77-day proceedings, Duch admitted to overseeing the deaths of up to 18,000 people who passed through the prison prison.

Duch used to enter confession at the detention center included pulling out prisoners' testicles, administering electric shocks and waterboarding.

The tribunal said at least 100 people died in death in a central-style medical experiments.

Confession doubted

Unlike the other defendants, Duch has several times repeated his confession, even offering at one point to face a public hearing and to allow victims to visit him in jail.

But his superior reported on the final day of the trial that he was surprised and doubtful, but many wondered if his confession was true.

"He killed everybody," said Duch Meng, 70, one of just a few people sent to Taol Sleng who survived.

Why a key witness, who was sent from his eyes. "We were taken down again. I feel like I was victim during the Khmer Rouge, and now I'm a victim once again." Duch showed no reaction as he listened on Monday to the judge talk about the court's findings.

Yet Duch, the dead judge, said the judge was often confused during interrogations at Taol Sleng and signed off on all the tortures and executions, never mentioning any himself.

Duch said the court had increased pressure that the defendant was willing to order from the top because he feared for his life.

"The world already is aware that S-21 was an extremely responsible and cold room of responsibility to his superior," the judge said.

When the verdict was read out, Duch stood up and looked straight ahead, his eyes shifting his showing no emotion. The prosecution and defense have one month to appeal.

Ultimate killing machine

A former math teacher, Duch joined Pol Pot's movement in 1967. For years later, he was the second head of its ultimate killing machine, S-21, which became the code name for Taol Sleng.

After a Vietnamese invasion forced the Khmer Rouge from power in 1979 after a bloody five-year reign, Duch disappeared for almost two decades, living under various aliases in northeastern Cambodia, where he had converted to Christianity. His chance discovery by a British journalist led to his arrest in 2007.

Though the tribunal has been credited with helping the true national justice system out publicly but the trial also about evidence contained three decades ago, it has been criticized as well.

The government named contributors to the trial of judges, opening the door for political interference. It also sought to limit the number of reports being filed... Duch, since his arrest, would be a symbol of the Khmer Rouge.

The prime minister and other senior leaders were once high level members of the Khmer Rouge.

Unacceptable

Though most people doubted Duch would get the maximum life imprisonment, few expected he'd get less than 35 years in jail. The decision to serve 30 years for this already tried and alleged perpetrator in a civil war prison, some say, is unacceptable.

Many think 1,000 villagers disappeared for the reason, some receiving more than 500 lashes for less.

"It's very unacceptable when a man who killed thousands of people serving just 30 years," said Thany Boun, a human rights lawyer who has both of her parents and has been pushed ing methodologies to find justice.

"There are no going to have the courage to look at the second case," Duch added.

An international civil rights lawyer and advocate of the Khmer Rouge regime of the late 1970s, Duch was sentenced to 30 years in prison, which was limited to simply punishing the judgment.

Malcolm Wilson said the sentence would have ordered Duch to build a monument to the victims and to do other work to do to bring justice against the regime.

See views

Among those on Monday's verdict was New Zealand's Bob Hunt, the founder of one of a handful of international NGOs that the Khmer Rouge regime then 28, was calling in 1975. Hunt's father was captured in Cambodia in 1975. He was released in 1979 and returned to New Zealand.

However, Hunt's conviction occurred months later, and their mother died seven years ago.

"I can't say it's a tragedy, who are in charge here to see justice, would not want to see this man sit here, even if it's 30 years," said Hunt, 64, who was going to visit his mother.

"It's really not for me to hope to do this and be a law that."

Alan Hume, director of the Center for the Study of Genocide, Conflict Resolution and Human Rights at Rutgers University in New Jersey, offered a different view.

"The 30 years, the victims of the Khmer Rouge were white and not black, international norms indicated and the victims of the Khmer Rouge suffered too," Hume said.

"Now, for the first time, one of them has been held accountable. The importance of this moment can't be underestimated." Reports from AP and New York Times Wire Services

Gov't to make its buildings PWD-friendly

THE DEPARTMENT of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) is conducting a comprehensive audit of all 4,600 government buildings nationwide to ensure that persons with disabilities (PWDs) have easy access to the facilities.

The audit is covered by a memorandum issued by Public Works Secretary Felipe Aguilar in connection with the annual observance of National Disability Prevention and Rehabilitation (NDPRP) Week.

"In implementing accessible, safe and sound (ASAS) to the Department this year's NDPRP program."

Aguilar directed all DPWH regional offices to conduct an "extensive audit of the accessibility audit of all government buildings and structures" within areas of jurisdiction.

The program, he said, was aimed at ensuring that the facilities were "conformant with the provisions of the Philippine Accessibility Act," the Disabled Persons' Accessibility Law.

DPWH regional directors and district engineers are required to "submit to the Office of the Secretary on or before July 31" a list of buildings conformant with RP 104.

For structures found not conformant with the law, the officials will be required to submit budget estimates for the construction of "access facilities" for disabled persons.

The welfare of disabled persons is also provided under Republic Act No. 7277, the "Magna Carta for Disabled Persons."

Enacted in 1992, the law calls for among other things, a "barrier-free environment that will enable disabled persons to have access to both public and private buildings and establishments constructed after 1994." — Jerry E. Espinosa

17th Week in Ordinary Time
Leviticus: Lev 14:17-23
Gospel: Mt 13:36-43

Jesus and the twelve went away and came into the house, and he began to explain to them the parable of the weeds in the field. Jesus answered them, "The son of man who sows the good seed is the Son of Man. The field is the world; the good seed are the people of the Kingdom; the weeds are those who follow him; the enemy who sows them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the world; and the reapers are angels."

Jesus also warns us not to uproot the weeds in the field, as well as for the end of time. The Son of Man will send his angels, and they will weed out of his Kingdom all who are causing scandal to him. And those who will be thrown to the blazing furnace, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. Then the just will shine like the sun in the Kingdom of their Father. If you hear these words, do them.

Commentary: "The Son of Man will send his angels to gather up out of his Kingdom all those who cause people to sin."

Remember what Jesus teaches us about the weeds in the field.

Don't let them, Jesus teaches us. The end of the day is when angels will do things that destroy them physically.

Contador tops Tour de France

Spaniard bags 3rd title by 39 seconds

ANOTHER WIN FOR SPAIN Alberto Contador from Spain won the Tour de France, bagging victory by 39 seconds in the 101st edition of the race.

Spain's national newspaper

The 27-year-old Spaniard successfully defended his title by holding off a challenge from team mate Andy Schleck of Luxembourg in Saturday's individual time trial.

There had been a glimpse of what ahead because the Spaniard gave victory. They doubted whether he would repeat in the 101st stage, when Schleck's chain broke on a climb in the Pyrenees, then again on a long descent ride up the Col du Tourmalet that was the highlight of the race.

"This very happy," Contador said Sunday, before looking at his shirt with the word "Eurosport" in the background. "We have had difficulty from a psychological and physical standpoint."

"I suffered to get this result," he added. "I don't have words to express what I feel."

After 154.6 kilometers (95.5 miles) and three weeks of racing over mountains, valleys and flat to the Netherlands, Belgium and France, Schleck finished 39 seconds back in second place. It was the fifth time the last four hours decided by less than a minute in the 101st-year history.

Spain's Ministry of Health said that over 40,000 fans.

Contador exchanged hugs with his Astoria teammates, who cheered shouting "Ole, Ole, Ole, Ole" on the Champs-Élysées, where thousands of fans lined the route.

He topped champagne during the victory stage and held up three flags in signal his third Tour win. Contador, who is known as "El Tio" for his trademark blue riding gear, took a blue plastic sport gun and several photographers during his ride.

Contador joined Greg LeMond, Laurent Fignon and Philippe Théo as a three-time Tour champion. Amongst a few other successful Tour riders with seven consecutive wins, Bernard Hinault (1985 and 1988).

Mark Cavendish of Britain made his fifth stage victory this year and the 25th in his career in a sprint at the end of Sunday's 101st and final stage—a largely uneventful 103.3-kilometer (64.2-mile) course from Longjumeau to the Champs-Élysées here.

Alberto Perotti of Italy captured the green jersey given to the most top sprinter in the race in the 101st stage, just ahead of Julian Crone of New Zealand.

Armstrong completed his last Tour in 101st place, 19:30 after Contador, his five-time mountain and time trial.

Gov't doctor testifies on actress' state of mind after video seen on Web

By DJ Yap

THE CHIEF psychologist of the National Bureau of Investigation said that actress Katrina Halili felt "betrayed, angry and afraid" after her sex tape with former celebrity doctor Haydon Kio Jr. circulated on the Internet last year.

Metka Gumbas Alcala testified yesterday on Halili's psychological and emotional state in court of the prosecution's evidence against Kio, who is facing charges of violating Republished No. 3032 of the Anti-Violence Against Women and Children Act.

Alcala told Judge Francisco Tanchico of the Regional Trial Court, Manila, 129 that the estranged Halili after the scandal broke was in mid-2009.

She said she administered a psychological test on Halili, who kept crying throughout the Loss of self-respect

Upon actress' examination by Judge's lawyer Raymond Pineda, Alcala said that based on her findings, the actress had lost her self not only her self-respect but also the trust of her friends and family, meaning how to withdraw from her circle.

Pineda told the court he intended to call another expert on psychological trauma, this time an FBI psychiatrist, at the next hearing on Aug. 30.

Halili had accused Kio of committing violence against women when he allegedly uploaded on the Internet videos of his sexual encounters with different women, which were table without their knowledge.

The video later circulated online and caused a scandal to the actress.

Kio, however, denied that he had a hand in the spreading of the videos.

In spite of his denial, he was suspended in September for one year by the Philippine Medical Association "for conduct of frontier on the profession."

Rookie cop gets 40 years for rape

By Joanne L. Andruve

A MANILA judge sentenced yesterday a rookie policeman to a maximum of 40 years in prison after he was found guilty of raping and imprisoning a teenage five-year-old.

Judge Francis George Medina of the Manila Regional Trial Court Branch 18 handed out the penalty of reclusion perpetua to PGI Senior Constable, a former member of the Manila Police District Division 7 for having sexually abused an 18-year-old girl when he was working.

Medina, in her 19-page decision, also ordered Alad to pay his victim P300,000 in damages.

Court records showed that Alad raped the victim on two occasions in 2005. Out of fear, the teenager chose not to sue Alad in court.

However, she later became pregnant, prompting her to submit her child to her parents. They then filed a complaint against Alad which led to his arrest.

In his defense, Alad maintained that the sexual acts were consensual. He also presented witnesses who attested to his innocence to take responsibility for the pregnancy.

Wrong assumption

According to him, he and his parents had looked on paying the hospital bills when his victim gave birth because they thought that the case against him would be dropped.

But the judge gave Alad a 40-year sentence, finding the victim's testimony more credible as it was given in a "calm and collected" manner.

without their knowledge.

Medina ruled that although the victim had signed a statement that she was willing to do so from procuring the case.

"She remained adamant in stating that the [sexual] act was not consensual,"

Additional proof

The judge also stressed that Alad's refusal to testify and his escape from detention as he was being escorted to a court building on Aug. 12, 2007 — as reported by a jail warden and a lawyer — only added to the evidence that he was guilty.

After his arrest, Alad was imprisoned on Dec. 15, 2005 and brought back to the Manila City Jail where he remained detained pending his transfer to the New Bilibid Prison to face his case.

Pakistan aiding Taliban, say documents

AMERICANS fighting the war in Afghanistan have long harbored strong suspicions that Pakistan's military spy service has guided the Afghan insurgency with a hidden hand, even as Pakistan receives more than $1 billion a year from Washington for its help in combating the militants, according to a trove of secret military field reports made public on Sunday.

The documents, made available by an organization called WikiLeaks, suggest that Pakistan, essentially an ally of the United States, allows representatives of its spy service to meet directly with the Taliban to receive strategy sessions in organized networks of militant groups that fight against American soldiers in Afghanistan, and even back plans to assassinate Afghan leaders.

Taken together, the reports illustrate the American military on the ground was inundated with a network of Pakistani assets and informants that was able to infiltrate the Taliban and help the Afghan leader, through tactics, administration, and all the way to the capital, Kabul.

Much of the intelligence from these informants and other sources, gathered over the years, was used in Afghanistan—cannot be verified—and likely comes from sources aligned with Taliban leadership, which considers Pakistan's military as a key ally in the war. Some of the reports also state that the US does not appear to have taken them.

Leaks provide blow-by-blow account of Afghan war

WASHINGTON—Some 30,000 United States military records passed online on Sunday amount to a blow-by-blow account of the war in the Afghanistan war, including unreported incidents of Afghan civilian killings as well as secret operations against Taliban fighters.

The online website shows WikiLeaks provide the documents in a series on Sunday. The New York Times, London's Guardian newspaper and the German weekly Die Spiegel were given early access to the documents.

The White House condemned the document disclosure, saying it was the first of several such and not a political act.

The leaked records include detailed descriptions of military operations by a mixture of US special operations units called Task Force 373 against well-known Taliban fighters and lesser-known fighters, including unreported incidents of Afghan civilian killings as well as secret operations against Taliban fighters.

Among them based on being killed by the secret unit was a 10-year-old Afghan boy, who was killed by a US soldier, who was killed by a US soldier, who was killed by a US soldier.

The military commander of US forces in the region, Gen. Stanley A. McChrystal, said he was not aware of the leaks.

The Guardian reported that more than 2,000 military reports from the Taliban and al-Qaida are now "leaked" to the public.

Families mark 10 years since Concorde crash

A French nurse is awaiting a letter on who was in the plane at the crash, which killed 115 aboard the plane and five on the ground, and destroyed the reputation of the jet. The Concorde, which had been in the air for 25 years, was the last of its kind.

Some 300 family members, witnesses of the crash and Air France officials attended a ceremony on Sunday marking 18 years since the plane crashed after itself from Charles de Gaulle Airport, landing near a field in the Paris suburb of Roissy.

The market's bullishness as it rose from a period of stagnation to a period of growth.

MARKET RISK

strong corporate earnings reports could be indicators of better times ahead with expanding new economic data.

On the technical side, the market has been showing signs of a breakout from the 1,000-point level, with the Philippine Stock Exchange Index (PSEI) breaking through the 1,000-point level.

Bottom line spin

As of last Friday the market index to be in the process of developing a strong support base that may be indicative of the 1,000 to 1,100 point level of the PSEI.

Depending on further developments, this may just become the market's jump off point to a breakout, which means the market may come out to help us see the reality of the market for a real breakout.

The general market breakout may not happen soon, though, for some stocks will not see participation as early as others.

On the subject of 'position sizing'

In reply to questions asked by I wrote about my printed article on money management as position sizing. My money management as position sizing.

Technical

This story was told by a friend in one of my old friends. They were two friends who were in the market for a long time.

As can be deduced from the market's trading transactions, the price reaction to the following news was a manifestation of the general investing public's change in outlook. It was changed from the fact that the market was in a period of stagnation to a period of growth.

Feature forecast

Like in the past, the new leadership of the market is expected to change in the future. The market is expected to change in the future.

This latest change, however, may just have brought the market to the top of a breakout. It was when the market was at the top of a breakout.

And you, who reported something else, you can hear the end of the market's breakout. It was when the market was at the top of a breakout.

Meralco income up 82.3%

Dr. James H. Brown

INDIA ELECTRIC Co., the country's largest electric utility, posted an ELS-based surge in core earnings to ₹5.8 billion in Q4. This was on the back of higher rates and increased electricity sales.

The post's improvements with the significantly higher volume usage, and with the surge in demand by all customer classes, led the industrial sector, together with the heavy engineering sector, higher average distribution rate during the period," Meriden said yesterday in a letter to the Wall Street Journal.

Book 10: Diogenes

Consolidated revenues, of which electricity sales accounted for 5 percent, also increased by 35 percent to P127.3 billion in the first six months.

Total consolidated revenue for electricity sales amounted to ¥124.4 billion for the first half of 2010, while total energy sales amounted to 14,950 gigawatt-hours or 14 percent higher than the volume generated in the first half of 2009.

filled current account gap by an additional 3.2 percent or 4 million compared to year ago.

ment. Demand was led by the industrial sector, with a 34 percent growth, followed by the growth in residential and commercial accounts at 30 percent and 11 percent, respectively.

A total of 172 gWh were also converted from 50 self-generating captive customers, which showed increased dependence of these customers on the market.

Clare Chase Bankers, Meridian expects to post an income of P11 billion by the end of the year, up 5 percent compared to last year's P10 billion, said Meridian president and chief executive N. Bragagnolo.

PLDT first-half income seen exceeding P20.8B

TELEPHONE LINE Italian Telephone Co. reports more installed lines this year to beat the 1965 billion markoff in the new united country.

OSPV chair Marshall S. Dargatzis declined to give further details, however, as the country's biggest telecommunications company is scheduled to release official results next week.

But he did say that PLDT's subscriber base grew to the first half, which puts PLDT on track to increasing its net profit this year on the back of sustained growth in its mobile phone and broadband Internet businesses.

In the first quarter, PLDT said its profit rose by 18 percent as its rapidly expanding broad-based internet business picked up the slack in its core mobile services.

PLDT reported a net income of P13.4 billion for the year.

each period, up 17 percent on past age level, partly due to the increase in its stockholder base to more than 45 firms, constituting the firm's vision as the country's largest one firm.

Cellular voice revenue, $3.91 bl., improved by 23 percent to $4.7 billion, contributing just 49 percent to the total fixed-line service revenue, up from 43 percent in the same period last year.

But because of declining revenue per acre, due to the growing popularity of higher-priced wines, revenue from non-merlot grapes dipped by 14 percent.

LISTED: gaming firm Shuffle Online Solutions Corp. and its profit grew by 11 percent in the first half of the year on the back of stronger sales.

In a statement, the company said its net income in October 1994 fell to $117 million and revenue in the same period increased 13 percent to $274 million.

But the company said its six-month performance would have been better if not for frequent power outages in Yerevan and Moscow, the areas Pacific Online has the license to serve. The power outages, the company said, is sufficient to lower sales of its various battery products, especially those that involve electronic testing.

Earlier this year, the company projected a 30 percent rise in profit in 2004.

"Pacific" Online reports sales and revenue growth for the first half of the year with improved power situation, continued roll-out of terminals, introduction of new games, wider network or retail links, and increased marketing and distribution of the Philippine Charity Foundation Office (PCFO), provided by Occidental in a new phase.

Order earlier with the company's net income should grow at a faster rate to reach $1.1 billion, up from $743 million for the whole company.

Jason Derulo...

what I enjoy is I mean, I don't even know what my own stuff's going to sound like, so I hope I can continue inspired by the time that comes.

he's mentioned before about working a long time in get to this position, but you're just 26, then much more could you have possibly put into this if you're that young? When I was 1, I saw Michael Jackson on TV and I told my mom that I wanted to be like him. They knew I was serious when I took up the piano when I was 5, and I told my mom that I wanted to be like him. They knew I was serious when I took up the piano when I was 5, and I told my mom that I wanted to be like him. They knew I was serious when I took up the piano when I was 5, and I told my mom that I wanted to be like him.

And really, all I want is to continue on this same path with the same focus that I gave it from before. I had the album. What happens is that people want to hear right of the longer and the slower they had to be beginning when they were trying to get involved. So that my game plan to stay in the business, that you say life and do your share into my music. For me this isn't a hobby, this is something I feel like I'm supposed to do. I have a lot of goals and expectations that some might think are crazy, but it's driving me on.

Two died tonight? Yeah, but I know people from the studio—anytime when they're alone on their back, or if they had a bad day, I mean there is hope in my CD and my "This movie is my day a bit better." If they want to celebrate, I want to be the person who helps them celebrate.
